Could you leave it with her?H: Fine. It's 62 Green Gardens, London N22.H: Just typing that in ... 52 Green Gardens.C: No, it's number 62.H: Now what kind of delivery would you like?C: What are the options?H: There are two. Is that OK?+ Delivery date is often goes with future tense, so look for the keyword "will", "going to". Do you know the name of the author? I've got my friend's address here. I'll add that if he's not home then the package should be left with the neighbour+ Look for the sentence that contain similar words, in this case, "not home" has the same meaning as "out", and "left" (in passive form) means the same as "leave" (in active form)+ The answer here should be neighbour. What was the title of the book you'd like me to order?C: I think it's called Future Words... no hang on, sorry that's Future Worlds.H: OK, just typing that in ... I can't seem to find it. What was the title of the book you'd like me to order?C: I think it's called Future Words... no hang on, sorry that's Future Worlds.+ The keyword "title" was mentioned, follow with the title of the book. Is that OK?C: Well, I know my friend leaves early for work, so would it be possible for him to pick it up from the local post office instead?H: I'm afraid that won't be possible but I could add some special instructions for it to be left with someone else, a neighbour perhaps?C: Actually, yes. We only accept credit cards."Payment method" is usually asked by the structure "How _____ pay?". It's a self-help book. Delivery instructionsif out leave with a _____H: Fine. Z-A-R-A.H: Just writing that down. PriceH: Now, it costs £ 12.99. "Price" is often mentioned with the keyword "cost"; the currency unit was given as £ - "pound", the structure is "12 pounds 99" stand for £12.99. Delivery date:H: Right.
