Bullet physics sdk manual.

The general dynamic properties dialog is part of the general dynamic properties dialogue. The dialog shows the engine configurations and several specific global engine properties. In the Dynamics General Properties Dialog box, click the Adjust Motor Parameters button to open the following dialog box: (General properties dialog box of Dinà motors MICA) Each engine has specific parameters that can be adjusted globally (see below) or locally (in the properties of the material or in the properties of the dynamics engines related to the joints). Configuration mode: allows you to quickly change between predefined or custom configurations for dynamic motors. However, it is recommended to maintain the default configuration to avoid possible compatibility problems between models that require different modes to run correctly. Properties related to the Fabric Bullet Library. Make sure you also consult the bullet user manual for more details. Time passage of the bullet: Specifies the desired time step for the dynamic calculations. It is highly recommended to keep a time step of 5MS (default). Combined with a 50mS simulation time step, this results in 10 steps of dynamic calculation per simulation step. Type of restrictions solver: The type of solver to be used. Restrictions resolution iterations: Specifies the number of iterations to be used to resolve the restrictions (large values usually lead to more slow but accurate (generally) simulations). Internal scaling: Specifies how the dimensions are handled internally. If your dynamic scene is composed of small forms (
